A receipt how to grind, and wash Colours, to temper uppon Yᵉ Pallet wᵗ’h Oyle.

Grinde yᵉ Colours as fine as you cann in fayre watter.
Then as you have grownd a Stoane full, cast it into a Bason of fayne water. so doeing from time to time, till you have grownd as much of yᵉ Coullour, as you desier. then stirr the Coullour, and yᵉ watter togeather, wᵗ’h a ‘want’ stick, or such like, till it be well disolved into the water. After this wᵗ’h a glass Tunnill, putt it into a pottell, or bigger glass, then if neede be, fill up the glass almost full wᵗ’h more fayre watter. and stop it up wᵗ’h a good Corck. This donne iownce, or stirr it very well almost a quarter of an hower, then lett it stand 24 howers or more, ‘till you see all yᵉ Coullour setled to the bottome. Then power the water yᵗ’ is above yᵉ Coullour softlye out, and putt in fresh water. then stirr it likewise agayne, and power out yᵉ water as before, and so doe, 5, or 6 times, ‘till the coullour setleth in an hower or 2, and when yᵉ Coullour is well setled, powre off yᵉ floating water, yᵗ’ yᵉ Coullour may remayne in ye Basson like mudd. This done, sett ye Basson into an Oven, (after ye Briad is out,) to dry, or other wise into ye same in ye heate of Summer. and you may temper it, on yo' Pallet, as you doe vermillion, Smalt, or such like Coullours. This way of washing Coullours takes out ye minsrall gamme, wth bindes (and Tarniches all Coullors, and makes ye Coullours less apt to starve. The Coullors capeable of this Washing are. Red Oaker, yeallow oaker, yeallow oaker burnt, English oat burnt, and vaburnt. browne red. India red. umber. and burnt um Burnt Ivorye, or boane Black, and blen varditer.

The Coullours that are not Capeable of this washing. are Cullis Earth, (wch is so light it will not sinke,) and lake and Pinke. wch wth washing loose ye life of ye Coullour. Therefore the way wth them is to Calcine them by the frost in winter. As thus.

After ye Collour is grownd very fine in water, putt it into a very cleane pottinger. Like Mudd, or salve, Then sett it soe it may freeze and Than wth ye weather setting ye dish a one side, ye the water may runn off from ye Coullour. Thus letting it freese divers times, it will rott ye Coullour into a fine pouder. fitt to temper on ye Pallat as those ye are washt.
