Acknowledgements

I would like to start by thanking Prof. Peter Sloot for being a helpful supervisor when I need and letting me develop my scientific identity at the same time. His deep knowledge and enthusiasm made this journey a great adventure. I learned many things in these four years from him but above all, my scientific curiosity flourished to guide me in the years to come.

I am grateful to all the colleagues in SCS group: Rick, Syed, Qiu, Narges Z., Narges J., Joris, Chinh, Daniel, Nol, Carolina, Paulina, Carlos, Max, Nga, Shan Mei, Breannán, Alfons, Jaap and Erik, Isabelle for their company as well as in the CSA group: Mark, Simon, Mike, Michiel, Michael, Raphael, Cagkan, Andy, Chris, Roberta, Adam, Aram for the endless discussions we got in about what ifs of science and technology. I would also like to thank all the members of

I especially would like to thank David van Dijk and Samira Jaeger for our successful collaboration over this period, which resulted in some of the work described in this thesis. Working together has been a great pleasure.

I am grateful to my paranymphs Emiliano Mancini and Eric Lorenz for not only being great colleagues but also helping me out during the defense. I also would like to thank the defense committee for their efforts in reading this thesis and being there at the ceremony.

I would like to thank Anna for her understanding and support during the preparation of this thesis, and her help with the translation of the summary.

The years I spent would not be as cheerful if it would not be for Charlotte, Duco, Linda and my all time friends Sinem and Ezgi.

I specially would like to thank Koen, Canan, Pamir, Peri, Cansu and Miran for being my family in Amsterdam, supporting me in everyway that I could think of.

The greatest basketball team of all times “One Rock” (Nick, Oliver, Luuk, Ellen, Sandra, Erwin, Petar, Rik and Vincent,) deserves a great applause for the baskets we score and the beers we drank together.

This note would not be complete without acknowledging my father Kemal Ertaylan, my mother Asuman Ertaylan and my brother Serkan Ertaylan as the eternal love and unconditional confidence they have given me all my life.

Anncim, Babacim ve sevgili Serkan: benim bugünlere gelmemdeki en önemli etken olan sizlere ne kadar teşekkür etsem azdır.
